

Chalk one up for Tom

June 24, 2016

Local artist David Lesako spent Friday morning drawing on the side of Artbeat in Waynesburg a chalk portrait of the late Tom Young, a man known best around town for the various jobs and window washing he did for small businesses before dying Feb. 28. The drawing was done before the Midnight Summer's Dream business open house on High Street organized by Waynesburg Prosperous & Beautiful. - Mike Jones/Observer-Reporter Order a Print

Sponsored Content on the Observer-Reporter

Where to Experience Authentic Mountain Music of Southern Appalachia

By Asheville Tourism

Learn about Asheville's music scene and see what's happening this summer!

TRENDING NEWS

Cecil police arrest Pittsburgh man on assault charges

Assessment letters description of appeal process going out July 1

PennDOT to display plans for bridge project

Monessen's general fund dips

Police Beat | Observer-Reporter